

16- Be My Peace

by Erin Lang Crowley

February 29, 2008

Exorcising demons, or at the very least a bad day. The lyrics were born yesterday of someone else's good news. Music born today, leap day...

I just want to end this day
Lay down my head & make it go away
Swathe my mind in empty dreams
And wake up at peace

I just want to forget this cross
The glacial weight of pain and loss
My back is weary and I've lost my way
I just need a place to stay

Ooooh-walk with me (x3)
Be my peace

I just need some help I am falling apart
A vessel dark & deep to shield my heart
Someone to hold the ground up under my feet
And sound the retreat

Ooooh-shelter me (x3)
Be my peace

I just need a chance to catch my breath
Gather in what pale hope is left
Lose the wince trapped in my eye
Let my tears rinse the skies

I just want to end this day
Lay down my head make it go away
Swathe my mind in empty dreams
And wake up at peace

Ooooh-sing to me (x3)
Be my peace